

GROVER CLEVELAND DIED THIS MORNING AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Last Of The Ex-Presidents Passes Away At His Home In Princeton, N. J., At Eight-Forty.

HE WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT FOR TWO TERMS

Remarkable Career Of Man Who Has Three Times Been Candidate For Highest Office
At Gift Of The People, And Twice Successful.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Princeton, N. J., June 24.—Grover Cleveland died at 8:40 this morning, buried Friday.
The funeral will occur on Friday at "Westland," Cleveland's residence on Bayard Lane, Princeton, and will be strictly private.
President's Message.
Oyster Bay, June 24.—President Roosevelt will not attend the Yale-Harvard boat races at New London tomorrow owing to the death of Mr. Cleveland. The President sent a message of condolence to Mrs. Cleveland and expressed his intention of attending the funeral.
Taft's Sympathy.
New Haven, Conn., June 24.—Sen. Taft was greatly shocked at Cleveland's death. He said: "He was one of the really great men of the country. His death is a distinct loss to the American people."
Grover Cleveland was seventy-one years old last March. The announcement of his death was delayed until the following official statement was prepared, by the attending physicians: "Cleveland for many years had suffered from repeated attacks of gastro-intestinal of the organs and a teacher. In 1855 Grover left New York to go to the west in search of employment. On his way he stopped at Onondaga, where he met a man named Allen, who induced him to remain and aid him in the compilation of a volume of the "American Hand-Book." He afterward assisted in the preparation of several other volumes of this work. In August, 1855, he secured a place as clerk and copyist for the law firm of Rogers, Bowen and Rogers, in Buffalo, began to read Blackstone, and in the autumn of that year was receiving four dollars a week for his work. He was admitted to the bar in Onondaga county, gave Grover additional educational advantages in the meantime. In his seventeenth year he became a clerk and assistant teacher in the New York institution for the blind in New York city, in which his older brother, William, was then in 1859, but for three years longer he remained with the firm that first employed him, acting as managing clerk at a salary of $1,000, a part of which he devoted to the support of his widowed mother, who died in 1862. He was appointed assistant district attorney of Erie county in 1863, and held the office for three years. At the same time he was engaged in checking public expenditures that he deemed unwelcome, illegal or extravagant. The reformer's methods of administering the city's affairs, instituted by him while mayor, led to his election in the following year as governor of the state of New York, by a majority of 192,000 votes over his opponent, Judge Folger, the republican secretary of the United States treasury. All the traits of his character, his industry, unostentatious dignity, thoroughness and simplicity noted in Mr. Cleveland's early career were observable during his stay in Albany. His phenomenal success in the gubernatorial election, as indicative of the probability of his carrying New York and of attracting the independent vote, secured him the democratic nomination for the presidency in 1880. It has been said that Mr. Cleveland was chosen as the republican candidate. Although the former received a popular majority larger than he had in 1884, the latter had the greater number of electoral votes and accordingly on March 4, 1889, Mr. Cleveland left Washington and removed to New York to engage in the practice of law.

The defeat of 1888 was accepted by most of the democratic leaders as a final disproof of Mr. Cleveland as a national factor in the democratic party. But when 1892 rolled around and the democratic party had to choose its standard bearer, the democratic leaders were compelled by the overwhelming sentiment of the democratic people to accept his third nomination. The contest in the Chicago convention of that year was a desperate one. It was on that occasion that Bourke Cochrane delivered his memorable speech against Cleveland. The nomination was bitterly fought by the delegation from his own state of New York. But on the first roll call Mr. Cleveland was nominated by a few votes more than the necessary two-thirds. In the election Mr. Cleveland received a popular plurality of 350,810 over Mr. Harrison.
Cleveland's second administration was simply a continuation of the policy that he had followed in his first term. New questions arose of the greatest importance, but he met them all from precisely the same standpoint, and with the same purposes that always distinguished him in his public career. The democratic majority in Congress was opposed to him on the money issue and the antagonism at times became extremely bitter. His attitude in the Venezuelan affair won him general praise as did also his promptness and firmness in suppressing the disorders growing out of the great railroad strike that centered in Chicago. But he had lost caste with his own party and the people that swept the country during his administration made him unpopular. With the people at large, however, there was no talk of his re-nomination in 1896. When Mr. McKinley succeeded him in the presidency Mr. Cleveland retired to Princeton, N. J., to spend the remainder of his days in the quiet of the university town.
Mr. Cleveland was the only President married in the White House, where, on June 2, 1886, Frances Folsom, the daughter of his old friend and wife at the Buffalo bar, became his wife. Ruth, the first of their children, was born Oct. 3, 1891, at their home in New York city. She was named after Mrs. Cleveland's grandmother. During Mr. Cleveland's second term as President she was widely known throughout the country as "Daisy Ruth." On January 7, 1904, she died at Princeton of heart failure, occasioned by a mild attack of diphtheria. Esther, the second daughter, was born Sept. 9, 1893, and has the distinction of having been the only child of a President born in the White House. Marion, the third daughter, was born on Buzzard's Bay, the Cleveland summer home, July 7, 1895. There was great rejoicing in the family when the three girls were followed by a son. He was born at Princeton, Oct. 28, 1897. With the announcement that a boy had come to the house of Cleveland the students at Princeton dubbed him "Grover Cleveland, Jr." at once. This name sticks to him, though he was christened Richard. Another boy was born at Buzzard's Bay, July 18, 1903. He was named Francis Grover for his mother.
John Thoma injured; John W. Thoma, of Emerald Grove had two fingers of his right hand cut off in a planing machine this forenoon. Dr. E. E. Locant was called to attend him.

also had a long standing organic disease of heart and kidneys. Heart failure complicated with pulmonary thrombosis and pneumonia were the immediate cause of his death."
While Cleveland has been seriously ill from time to time his death came like thunderbolt to those who have been watching his illness. Even as late as last evening Mrs. Cleveland said her husband was getting along nicely. His wife present at last night, but the children are at Tamworth, N. H., the summer home of Mr. Cleveland.
Mrs. Cleveland is prostrated and only a few sympathetic neighbors have been able to see her.
Half Mast.
Washington, D. C., June 24.—Flags on the government buildings are at half mast on account of the death of Cleveland.
Grover Cleveland, twenty-second president of the United States and the only democratic occupant of the White House since the Civil War, was born in Caldwell, Essex county, New Jersey, March 18, 1837. On the paternal side he was of English origin. Moses Cleveland emigrated from Ipswich, county of Suffolk, England, in 1635, and settled at Woburn, Mass., where he died in 1801. His grandson was Aaron, whose son, Aaron, was great-grandfather of Grover. Grover Cleveland's father was a Presbyterian clergyman, who, in 1829, married Anne Neal, daughter of a Baltimore merchant of Irish birth.
When Grover was four years old his father accepted a call to Fayetteville, near Syracuse, N. Y., where the son had an academy schooling, and afterward was a clerk in a country store. The removal of the family to Clinton, this time strenuous efforts were being made to bring the Civil War to a close. Two of Cleveland's brothers were in the army, and his mother and sister were dependent largely upon him for support. Unable to enlist, he borrowed money to send a substitute, and it was not until long after the war that he was able to repay the loan. In 1862, at the age of twenty-eight, he was the democratic candidate for district attorney, but was defeated by the republican candidate, his intimate friend, Lyman K. Bass. He then became a law partner of Isaac V. Vanderveer, and in 1869 became a member of the firm of Lansing, Cleveland and Folsom. He continued a successful practice until 1870, when he was elected sheriff of Erie county. At the expiration of his three-year term he formed a law partnership with his personal friend and political antagonist, Lyman K. Bass, the firm being Bass, Cleveland and Bassell, and after the forced retirement from failing health of Mr. Bass, the largest ever given to a candidate in that city. In the same election a republican state ticket was carried in Buffalo by an average majority of over 1,000; but Cleveland had a partial republican, independent, and "reform" movement support. He soon became known as the "veto mayor," using that prerogative freely in checking public expenditures that he deemed unwelcome, illegal or extravagant. The reformer's methods of administering the city's affairs, instituted by him while mayor, led to his election in the following year as governor of the state of New York, by a majority of 192,000 votes over his opponent, Judge Folger, the republican secretary of the United States treasury. HAS HATTON MADE AN ALLIANCE NOW?

It is said the Candidate For the Senate Means to Try Out.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 24.—The fact that ex-Senate Senator W. H. Hatton has joined the inside-track with the La Follette organization and is the favored candidate for succession to United States Senator Stephenson is being generally accepted around the state capital. As verification of this it is mentioned that Senator Stephenson refused to pay the hotel bill for the La Follette headquarters at the national convention in Chicago and it is said that Mr. Hatton contributed $1,000 to this cause. It is declared to be a "clinch" that if Mr. Hatton was separated from $1,000 to maintain the La Follette headquarters at the Grand Pacific hotel during the convention it was accomplished by nothing short of a definite understanding that he was to have the support of the La Follette organization in the coming canvass for the nomination for Senator Stephenson's seat.
HUDNALL SATISFIED.
Madison, Wis., June 24.—"No, I am not entirely satisfied with the republican national platform," said State Senator George H. Hudnall of Superior in the governor's office yesterday. "I would have made several changes had I been the convention, but I am not inclined to set myself up as better and wiser than the party, and I like the candidate to the limit." And he displayed a big Taft button.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Montreal, June 24.—The annual convention of the Association of Railway Telegraph Superintendents began in Montreal today and will continue until the end of the week. The attendance embraces representatives of the telegraph departments of nearly all the leading railways of Canada and the United States. An elaborate program of entertainment has been arranged, the features including trips to Quebec, St. Anne de Beaupre, Montmorency Falls and other places of interest.
ANNUAL MEETING OF MICHIGAN DOCTORS
State Medical Society Opens Two Days' Session Today—Many Present.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Lansing, Mich., June 24.—The Michigan State Medical Society, with a membership of 2,000 physicians and surgeons, began its annual convention in this city today. A large attendance marked the formal opening of the gathering. The convention will continue and conclude its session tomorrow.
Home From K. P. Convention: Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Baldwin have returned from Green Bay where the former represented Oriental Lodge No. 22, Knights of Pythias, at the annual state convention of the order. He reports a very interesting and profitable session. The next convocation will be held at LaCrosse. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin visited at Oshkosh and Allouez on their way home.

SHERMAN BETTER: NO OPERATION TO BE PERFORMED NOW
Vice-Presidential Candidate Is Now Thought to Be Rapidly Improving. And No Operation Necessary.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cleveland, Ohio, June 24.—Following a consultation of physicians attendant upon Mr. Sherman at 10:30 today a statement was authorized that the condition of Mr. Sherman continues so favorable that there is no present possibility of an operation being necessary. The physicians will not hold another consultation today unless his condition should change for the worse.
Mr. Sherman now expects to leave the hospital not later than Saturday unless now complications set in.

DISTURBANCES WERE NOT AS REPORTED
Troubles at Teheran Were Much Exaggerated in the First Reports—Forty Were Killed.

London, June 24.—An official dispatch from Teheran today states the situation there is not so bad as reported and it is estimated that about forty were killed.
STATE NOMINATING CONVENTION CALLED Republican Convention Will Ratify Ticket Named at Recent Primary.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Waterloo, Ia., June 24.—The Republican State nominating convention was called to order here today. The convention will ratify the ticket named at the recent primary election and adopt a platform of resolutions. A number of the candidates on the state ticket were on hand at the opening of the convention.

RIVER RISES; MANY TRAINS ARE DELAYED

Root River is Up and Much Valuable Property is Being Destroyed.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
La Crosse, Wis., June 24.—As a result of a steady rise in the Root river all trains on the Southern Minnesota division of the Milwaukee road between this city and Janesville, Minn., will be abandoned for a week. The river is a raging torrent and is rising hourly. Seventeen washouts are reported on the road between Mount Prairie and Janesville. Passenger train No. 23 which left here on schedule time is stalled between two washouts and may be obliged to remain there for several days. Houston is surrounded by water which has entered the village limit and threatens to tie up all business.

WANT WHITEHEAD TO RUN FOR THE SENATE

Twenty-Five Substantial Business Men of Deloit Met Last Evening to Urge His Candidacy.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Deloit, June 24.—"Senator John M. Whitehead must again be elected state senator from Rock county." This was the decision reached last evening at a conference of twenty-five leading business men who had met to discuss the situation. It was a most representative gathering and one which developed much enthusiasm. It was composed of men who control the destinies of many of the large shops of the city and also who have been prominent in politics. A committee was named to confer with the Janesville senator and urge that he again become a candidate for re-nomination.

COW STRUCK BY CAR; SCARES PASSENGERS

Interurban Car Wrecked Near Rockton by Wayward Bovine Who Stood on the Track.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Deloit, Wis., June 24.—A cow belonging to Walter Little of Rockton walked onto the track ahead of an interurban car and was killed. The car ran over the carcass and the front wheels were lifted from the rails, necessitating considerable delay and badly scaring the passengers.
Little Paul Middleton was struck by a horse, knocked down and run over while he stood watching a parade of the Beavers' drill team. A gash two inches long was cut in his head and he was otherwise bruised.

INSANE MAN WAITS AN OPPORTUNE TIME

Then Ends His Life at the Mendota Insane Asylum.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 24.—For 16 months Fred Hamann watched for a chance to commit suicide in the state insane asylum at Mendota. Yesterday he accomplished his desire and last night another patient discovered the lifeless body of Hamann hanging by a clothline in the basement of the asylum. He was 50 years old and lived at Eagle Point, Chippewa county, from which place he was committed to the asylum in February, 1907. He had made an attempt to kill himself and was examined and found insane, being determined to commit suicide. At the asylum he was carefully watched for a long time, but lately was given the freedom of the grounds and this gave him the opportunity he sought.

STARTED CANNING PEAS AT FACTORY

P. HOENADEL JR. CO. START NEW INNOVATION.

IRST RUN BEGAN MONDAY

Eighty Loads of Peas Were Received on Monday as a Start for the Work.

On Monday last eighty loads of peas and vines were delivered at the P. Hoenadel Jr. Co. factory in Spring Brook as a start for the new industry of canning peas which will be begun at the factory this year. One hundred men are at present working, but when the full crop begins to come in the force will be increased.

The canning of peas is a line entirely new to this locality as the growing of peas for canning has never before been attempted. The peas that are being used this year are grown mostly on the Hoenadel farms south of the city and the Ingalls and Newman farms have also grown some for the factory. The different processes through which the peas pass are indeed very interesting.

When the peas have reached the right age for canning they are cut and loaded onto wagons and taken to the factory. Some of the farmers use a mower for cutting and a horse-drawn roller for leveling the plants into piles. After this, the plants and pods are loaded onto a truck and taken to the cannery. There they are put on the platform connected with the shelling machine where they are put in as fast as the machine can take them. This machine is a revolving affair like a threshing machine with a paddle which breaks the pods open, the paddle turning in the direction opposite to that in which the rest of the machine or the "rubber" as it is called, is turning. As the pods are broken open the peas fall out and roll down a curtain to a continuous belt and conveyed into what is called the "grader." The pods and the vines are taken off by a conveyor and thrown on a stack at the end of the building.

In the grader the peas are passed through a series of sieves which sort them into five different sizes. From the grader the peas are then put on the sorting table where all of the pods and dirt which have not been thrown out by the other machine, are picked out by hand.

The next step is putting them through the rotary washer. This is a sort of circular screen which revolves, with a stream of cold water passing over them as the machine turns. Next the peas are put in buckets and taken to the "blancher." This is a large vat, 36x43 feet in dimensions and contains water heated to the boiling point in the boilers in the lower part of the building. This is the first cooking which the peas receive. During the time which the peas are allowed to stay in the blancher, it consists of a chain with clips on the side which catch the peas on the bucket and push the bucket through the vat. The speed of this chain regulates the time of cooking. Three to ten minutes are required in this process, according to the quality of the peas which are being cooked.

The buckets are now carried over to what is called the "whirlpool washer." In this the peas are forced through the water with a centrifugal motion and washed. The peas are now carried to the "filler and briner" where a syrup is mixed with the peas and they are put into the cans. A continuous carrier takes the filled cans to the filling machine and the filler. From here they continue to the capping and the cans are put on and the tops are closed. In order to be sure that no air can enter and spoil the goods, each can is looked at as it passes along the carrier. Any that are imperfectly soldered are immediately reworked.

The final cooking is made in large steam kettles each of which will hold a crate of cans. These kettles are heated, up to 236 to 240 degrees and the peas are cooked from twenty to thirty-five minutes according to the amount of cooking that they may require. An interesting thing about this kettle is the clock which is connected with them. This has a signal bell, which rings when the peas in a kettle have cooked the time required.

After this process the cans are taken to the storehouse and are placed in cases ready for shipping.

MISS NELLIE HAYES WAS MARRIED TODAY

Pretty Wedding at St. Mary's Church This Morning at Eight Thirty.

At eighty thirty this morning at St. Mary's church Miss Nellie Hayes and Glen C. Snyder were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed at midday low mass, the Rev. Father Collins of North Fond du Lac officiating.

The church was prettily decorated with flowers and the ceremony was witnessed by a number of friends and relatives of the bride and groom. After the marriage service a wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home at 161 South High street. The happy couple left today on an extended wedding trip through the west.

Paul Vail.

At two o'clock this afternoon Mr. Gertrude Blanche Paul and Mr. Claude Mitchell Vail, of Benton, Wis., were married, the Rev. R. C. Doulson performing the wedding ceremony. Only the immediate families of the bride and groom were present. The young couple left this evening for a short trip to Milwaukee and Chicago after which they will go to Hinton where they will make their future home. They will be at home after August first.

Defendorf-Livingston. In Kanawha City, Mo., today, Thomas S. Livingston of this city was united in marriage to Miss Annette E. Defendorf of Joplin, Mo. Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Livingston will visit Chicago and Janesville and Livingston, after which they will go to Hinton where a cozy home has been made ready. Mr. Liv-

PROSPECTS ARE GOOD FOR EXCELLENT CROP

Manufacturers Are Still Holding Off And Waiting for Better Prices.

If this hot weather with the frequent rains continues better weather for tobacco growing could not be asked for. The prospects for this year's crop are excellent and if it turns out as expected, it will be of a very fine quality. Most of the farmers in this section of the tobacco belt have their plants set out last autumn. Stoughton they are only about half done.

In the dealer's line there is a demand for samples and many sales. One thousand cases of Wisconsin tobacco were reported as being sold in New York last week, and the American Tobacco company are buying all the low grade packings which they can secure. The New York Leaf, one of the trade journals, says that the reason for the small amount of sales is because the manufacturers are holding off, looking for better prices later on.

Some of the local dealers are selling any great amount of tobacco though they are still working on the '07 pack and still buying. L. B. Carlo & Son report fair sales of '06 tobacco but no large sale or shipments. Mr. L. B. Carlo explained the dullness of the market by the remark that the manufacturers were buying from hand to mouth.

At the McMillan warehouse the work on the '07 pack has been finished and sales somewhat better than they had been. At Caldwell's warehouse things were quiet. They finished working on the last year's pack last Saturday.

Grandy Brothers report a few small shipments and quite a number of inquiries for samples. Mr. Samuel Grandy says that business will soon be picking up as the outlook is very much improved.

J. P. Donahue has not finished work on the '07 pack yet and they have about thirty-five at work as they are still buying.

S. B. Haddles has about twenty working on last year's crop but they are only selling in small quantities. John Southman has sold 190 cases of all grades for good prices.

YALE-HARVARD RACE OCCURS TOMORROW

Two Opposing Crews Took Final Practice Spin on the Thames Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New London, Ct., June 24.—Now London is putting on her holiday attire which she dons but once a year, for tomorrow is the day of all days, it is the day on which Harvard and Yale meet in the annual battle of oars, and the old city is proud to entertain the rowing sons of the two greatest universities in the country. The town is brilliant with flags and bunting of crimson and blue and the place has taken on an air of life and activity customary to the occasion. The regular city routine has been established, the same excitement occurs each year prior to and about race time, the same deep lethargy reigns after, but for the few days of hustle and bustle, cheers and song New London is without a rival.

The two crews who are to battle tomorrow for supremacy on the water took their final practice spins today. For several weeks they have been quarreling on the banks of the beautiful Thames river, which, like its namesake in England, has been in the past the scene of many a hard fought battle, and will tomorrow be the scene of one that will doubtless be as interesting as any that has ever taken place there, though the contest may not be so close as in some previous years.

For months the preparations for the race have been going on, but the tedious work of training is now over, and today eight husky sons of '81 and eight brand-shouldered youths from Cambridge are resting, taking things as easy as the thoughts of impending battle will allow, and tomorrow the great test of power, endurance and speed takes place.

Yale is the choice in the betting today. Few wagers have been placed so far, but tomorrow morning, when the crowd pours in from Boston, New York and other points, it is expected that much money will be placed at stake. Yale supporters are confident as to the result of the rivalry race, and Harvard men appear to be only hopeful. While both crews are evenly matched up to the standard of previous years, and a fast race is not looked for, Yale is slightly the favorite in the betting because of her superior form and the better quality of her work during the past week in practice. Harvard at almost the last moment had the misfortune to lose two of her best men. Many critics declare that for this and for other reasons the form of the crimson crew is ragged and shabby. Yet, even many Yale men admit that endurance alone will nullify the race, and it is upon this that Harvard's hopes are based.

Yale and Harvard elicits have rowed forty-one races, the first in 1852. Since 1878 the contests, with one exception, have taken place on the Thames river course. Of the forty-one races Yale has won twenty-three, while Harvard has eighteen victories to her credit.

Walk to Chicago: A men's chorus from Chicago passed through here today enroute from Madison to Chicago. They are walking the entire distance.

Enjoyed Picnic: Last night, E. R. Whitlow, a couple of friends, and the boys who work for him went up the river to Mingo's on a picnic. Lots of good things to eat were taken along and a supper cooked over an open fire was enjoyed by the members of the party. A tent was taken along to sleep in and the party spent the night on the river, two of the boys sleeping out in the open air. The return was made this morning in time to be here for work. All those who went had a very enjoyable time.

PRIMARIES NOW ON IN NORTH DAKOTA

Republican and Democratic Primaries Are in Progress Throughout State Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Bismarck, N. D., June 24.—By tomorrow the people of North Dakota will know the makeup of the state and congressional tickets for which they will vote at the fall election. Republican and democratic primaries are in progress throughout the state today. Many close and interesting contests are on in both parties and the results of the primary are awaited with great interest.

The fate of United States Senator Hansbrough hinges on the result of the republican primaries. The Senator is opposed for re-election by three candidates of his own party. They are C. B. Little of Bismarck, Thomas E. Marshall of Dakota, and M. N. Johnson of Petersburg. Little has the effective organization of the "rebels" behind him, and Johnson is regarded as the candidate of the "insurgent" faction.

The contest for the governorship in the republican ranks is between C. A. Johnson of Minot and Treadwell Twitell of Fargo, representing the stalwarts and insurgents, respectively. Both factions likewise have candidates in the primaries for all other places on the state ticket. These include lieutenant governor, justice of the supreme court, secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, attorney general, commissioner of insurance, commissioner of agriculture and labor.

Neither is there any lack of candidates in the democratic ranks. In fact, the number of aspirants for places on the democratic ticket is unusually large and is taken to indicate that the party this year has great hopes of success. There are several candidates for every office except the governorship. No one has appeared to claim the place of Governor John Burke and he is assured of renomination without opposition.

The democratic candidate for Senator Hansbrough's seat are John L. Cashel of Grand Fork and W. E. Purcell of Wahpeton. Mr. Cashel is chairman of the democratic state central committee and Mr. Purcell is a member of the state senate.

TAFT ATTENDS THE YALE EXERCISES

Yale and Harvard Hold Commencement Exercises This Week—Alumni Present.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New Haven, Conn., June 24.—The formal exercises of commencement day at Yale were held today. At 10 o'clock the graduates, candidates for degrees and invited guests assembled on the campus and marched in procession to Woolsey Hall, where the graduation exercises were held. Following the conferring of degrees upon the students, candidates for honorary degrees were presented. Among the distinguished guests who were named seats on the platform were Secretary William H. Taft and J. Pierpont Morgan. The dinner of the alumni in the university dining hall followed the commencement exercises.

Harvard's Commencement. Cambridge, Mass., June 24.—Accompanied by all the pomp and ceremony characteristic of the student government, the 272nd commencement exercises were held today at Harvard University, America's oldest educational institution. Many notables were among the guests. As in former years, the exercises of the day and procession to Sanders Theatre and Memorial Hall were in charge of the class that is celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of its graduation this year, the class of 1883 having the honor.

Features of the day were the meeting of the board of overseers, the opening of the polls for the election for the expiring terms of overseers to the graduates of three years' standing, the address of the governor, the procession to Sanders Theatre, the assembly of the distinguished company with the venerable President Eliot in the chair, the learned addresses, the conferring of degrees, and finally the meeting of the alumni association. Nearly all the classes held receptions during the day in various parts of the college yard.

Normal School Exercises. Ypsilanti, Mich., June 24.—Commencement exercises were held today at the Michigan State Normal college. President L. H. Jones presented the diplomas to the graduates, and President Edwin H. Hughes of De Paul University, who was recently elected a bishop of the Methodist church, delivered the address of the day.

WHY CHILDREN ARE DECEPTIVE. Fear of Punishment Frequently Leads to Untruthfulness.

Untruthfulness in children sometimes arises through the fault of their elders, who suggest to them untruths, which children endorse from an innate sense of politeness and a wish to be agreeable. "Don't you like so and so?" says the elder, and the child agrees. "Isn't this pretty?" comes later on, and the child partly believes that it is pretty since the suggestion has been made, the child's idea regarding the article in question would have been that it was extremely ugly. A yet more fruitful source of untruthfulness lies in the fear of punishment, and this is particularly the case with children of delicate body or of nervous temperament. Children who are governed by love rather than by fear escape this temptation to lie, but when a child feels that punishment for a fault or failing is inevitable, it seems such a little thing to cover the fault with a lie, and yet the child who lacks the moral courage to avow a fault suffers untold agonies of remorse for every lapse from truth. Let children be encouraged to own their faults, and even the most nervous can be made to do it, if sure that the confession takes away the punishment, or reduces it to such an extent that no bodily suffering is entailed.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

LEGISLATURE MEETS IN GEORGIA TODAY

Anti-pass and Anti-lobbying Bills Left Over Are to Come up Again This Session.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Atlanta, Ga., June 24.—Many important measures are to come up for debate at the hands of the Georgia General assembly, which convened in regular session today. Many bills that were left over from the last session are to be considered and acted upon. Among these are an anti-pass bill, anti-lobbying bill, a bill to revise the laws regarding the incorporation of railroads and a bill regular primary and other elections. The future disposition of the state convicts is among the most important matters to receive attention. The five-year term of the convicts, which has caused considerable criticism, will expire during the coming year, and it is therefore necessary for the present session of the legislature to solve the question. Many of the members oppose any further leasing of the convicts to private parties, and will favor putting them upon the public works of the state.

Penalizing the Motorist.

The proposal to increase the taxation of motor cars is due alike to a desire to penalize motorists in general for the offenses committed by a minority of them, and to a wish to augment the national resources. The first desire is not fair in itself, and the second will not realize its purpose commensurately with the annoyance it will cause.—Law Times.

The public of Italy easily takes first rank in warlike display upon its stamps. Its stamps breathe war, with cannon, ammunition, small arms and flags prominently displayed. In the contrary, the United States, the land of peace, the land of the future, the land of the "good Samaritan" administering aid and comfort to a fallen comrade.

The most recently dedicated of any other president except Grant's is the tomb of America's first president, George Washington, at Mount Vernon. It is indeed fitting that the American people should have erected this touching tribute to William McKinley. Perhaps no other president save Washington was so universally loved and honored by the people. He was a model man for the youth of America to study and follow, a devoted husband, capable statesman and a true patriot.

Heart to Heart Talks.

A STORY SERMONET.

of the world. Elected president, he dealt out justice fairly and equitably. His two terms as President were marked with many important periods of American history. The return to the south of the battle flags captured during the Civil war brought forth a storm of protest, but the wisdom of the step has been seen later in a united people with no divisional lines. The great railway strike which tied up traffic in the west, and the panic of '93, also came during his terms in office. Since his retirement from public life President Cleveland has made his home at Princeton, N. J. A scholar and a student, his last years have been devoted to study and his family. With his death the last living President of the United States passes away.

WAIT ON STEPHENSON.

The politicians of the state are waiting upon Isaac Stephenson to make his determination whether he is going to be a candidate for reelection again or not before doing anything definite themselves. "Uncle Ike" appears to hold the key to the situation and while he promises something definite in a line of announcement of his plans his many friends throughout the state are waiting for him to enter the field. He has won many friends by his conservative action in Washington and his recommendation would be merely a matter of form.

DAVIDSON ALONE.

It appears that Governor James Davidson is to have no opposition on the republican side of the fence for re-election. It was said to say that he would have been re-nominated had he been subjected to a grilling campaign as Wisconsin is going republican this fall by as big a majority as ever despite any warning and democratic thunder.

Mayor Heddles hit the nail on the head when he issued his ultimatum that he would hold the police responsible for being derelict in duty. It is not always safe to play both sides of a question as some of the public officials believe.

The illness of vice-presidential candidate Sherman is to be regretted, but it is probable he will recover to his usual good health so he can read the election returns in November, announcing that "Big Bill" and "Sunny Jim" are elected.

Dean McGinnity's death is to be mourned not only by the members of his church, but by citizens of all denominations. He was a strong man and an excellent citizen. His place will not easily be filled.

Crusaders often deal in generalities not in specific cases. This is what disgusts the majority of their hearers who would be glad to remedy abuses and violations of the law if shown the specific cases.

This is campaign year and the formation of a Taft-Sherman club in Janesville is just one of the steps that will come to make it exciting.

One friend of the canines issues the following warning: "Remember it is hot weather and give you four-footed pets plenty of water to drink."

Nomination papers for Thomas S. Nolan are being placed around the city and his congressional aspirations are now being demonstrated.

In clearing out the objectionables the city police department should have the moral support of every citizen interested in the welfare of the city.

Rock county may now have a better rural mail service if the work of the postal inspector is to be believed.

With the Fourth of July only a few weeks off the small boy can hardly wait to fire off his fire crackers.

The State School for the Deaf holds out for deaf boys and girls of Wisconsin opportunities practically equal to those enjoyed by hearing children.

This school gives a good common school education. It teaches speech and lip reading. It offers a high school course in preparation for college, and for higher usefulness.

It has excellent manual training and domestic science departments. It has an industrial department in which are offered cabinet work, carpenter work, printing, shoe making, dress making and millinery.

Great attention is paid to habits, morals, and health. Tuition, board and medical attendance is free to all deaf children in Wisconsin.

For information write to E. W. Walker, Sup't., State School for the Deaf, Delavan, Wisconsin.

Tends to Preservation.

Oranges, pears, grapes, cherries, etc., are now being packed in paper boxes containing nitrogen, and the exclusion of oxygen seems to keep the fruit from decay for an indefinite time. Fish shown in Paris in 1900 had been preserved in nitrogen for seven years.

Lovely Time.

"Yes," remarked Mrs. Malaprop-Purington, "we had a lovely time in Venice. There are no canals there, you know, because the streets are full of water. One hires a chandeller and he rows you about in a dogboat."

Impossible.

One cannot talk constantly without saying foolish things.

Faults.

Thank God we do not live with faults! We live with people full of faults, and it is excellent, for the faults of others serve us either by imposing a salutary constraint or by the lesson that they give.—Translated from Lo Figaro.

TREES AS BEAUTIFIERS

Value of a Welfare League's Crusade Already Apparent.

PRICE OF LOTS ADDED TO.

Property Owners in Evanston, Ill., Now Realize the Benefit—How the Village Has Been Improved in a Few Years.

The village of Evanston, Ill., was built up in a few years on the site of a number of dairy farms lying between Walnut Hills and Norwood. There were no natural trees on these farms, and the result was the new village was without shade. All the streets in the village were paved with brick, and the reflection of the hot sun on a summer day made the need of shade trees all the more marked.

Three years ago the Welfare association of Evanston appointed a committee on shade trees, and this committee called upon every lot owner in the village and urged the planting of trees twenty-five feet apart along the curb line. This request was heartily responded to, says the Chicago Commercial Tribune, and resulted in the planting of 800 hard maples, each about twelve feet high.

The work was done by an expert, who planted the trees scientifically and mulched them carefully. Each tree was then protected with a wire tree box, so as to be carefully protected. The committee is still in existence, and each year it has planted additional trees where none had been planted before or where trees have died. There are now over 1,200 of these trees in the village, and those which were planted three years ago have grown enough to give considerable shade and to lend beauty and charm to the scene.

The committee had some opposition to overcome. Occasionally a property owner feared that the leaves of the trees would clog the gutters and down spouts; others said the roots would rip up the sidewalks, while still others said the trees would come in fifty years or more when the trees would be so dense as to shut out the light. The committee, therefore, had to argue the points in favor of trees, the beauty of the building foliage in the spring, the glory of the summer and the splendor of the colors in the fall.

They presented the fact that the tree is a purifier of the atmosphere. The carbonic acid gas which is exhaled from the lungs of human beings and which is poison to animal life is absorbed by the leaves of trees and is the food of plant life. Thus vegetation keeps the atmosphere balance and contributes to the health of mankind.

Every one has experienced the delights of a rest under the shade of a tree on a hot summer day. Not only does the tree contribute to comfort by mitigating the rays of the sun, but the trees themselves cool the atmosphere and tend to maintain a fixed, equable temperature. This is so well understood that the New York County Medical society some years ago passed a resolution in which it found that one of the best means of diminishing the death rate among children in our cities is the cultivation of an adequate number of trees in the streets.

Any one can tell the difference between the air of a forest with its bracing ozone and the stuffy hot air of a treeless city street. The air in the woods contains less bacteria and dust particles and other air impurities than does the atmosphere removed from the vicinity of trees. Trees invite outdoor life.

For instance, in Evanston before the advent of shade trees there were hours on a hot summer's day when the children were driven from the sidewalks and the lawns by the blistering rays of the sun and sought refuge indoors. Now they gather under the shade of the little trees, and year by year their opportunities in this connection will be broadened.

The foregoing advantages of trees apply strictly to cities where it has been more or less difficult to persuade property owners to plant. So much has been said about the devastation of the forests throughout the country, so much has been argued with reference to floods, drought, winds, the washing away of soil and the like, that the nation at large has become aroused to the needs of the preservation of our forests, and going hand in hand with that agitation comes the realization of the same need in cities and villages.

In planting a tree the hole should be large enough to spread out all the roots. It is a mistake to cut up the roots, as is sometimes done. The soil should be well rammed about the tree, and then the tree should be mulched with black soil or with well rotted manure. Subsequent to planting the tree needs little attention save that it should be occasionally watered during a very dry spell.

A shade tree has a commercial value. Instances are not wanting where two lots side by side of the same size and character are offered for sale. One has shade trees and the other has none. The one with the trees sells for more money. There is an instance in the Chicago Commercial Tribune where as much as $500 was recovered as damages for the wrongful destruction of a sycamore tree. There was a verdict of $400 for an elm tree in Walnut Hills and one of $300 for two silver poplars in Cumminsville.

Opposition in Evanston to the planting of trees has disappeared. Within a year or two there will not be a single lot of ground in that suburb without its shade trees.

J. N. Ramsey, who was appointed chairman of the original committee in charge of tree planting in Evanston, is still acting in that capacity. It is no unusual thing to see Mr. Ramsey wandering through the village examining the bark and foliage of trees and notifying owners of any attention which the trees require in order to guarantee their continued growth. "He" has heard of the fact that for a century or two he will have a thousand or more monuments to his memory, and not only will they be monuments to his memory, but they will be useful in contributing to the health, happiness, pleasure and comfort of thousands of people.

While the tree committee's work was well done, it now regrets that it did not plant a variety instead of one kind of tree. It is correcting this mistake by filling in with other varieties the vacant places and where trees have died. In this way a sufficient variety will be secured. The committee recently planted trees about the Evanston public school and planted no two alike. This will assist the school children in becoming familiar with the various varieties of our shade trees.

As a money proposition the trees already planted in Evanston, with the care and boxing, cost in the neighborhood of $2,000, and it is certain that if $20,000 were offered to the property owners for the privilege of digging up and removing all the trees the proposition would be promptly refused. It is safe to say that the trees have added to the community a value much larger than that.

He Knew.
"Are you in pain, my little man?" asked the kind old gentleman. "No," answered the boy, "the pain's in me."

—IS A—

HANAN SHOE

After years of experience we know of no line of shoes today that match HANAN. If we did we would immediately recognize it, as our business is selling nothing but the very best shoes. We realize that everybody is not ready to pay $5.00, $5.50 or $6.00 for a pair of shoes—but for that man who reasons, and can be shown the "difference" between a HANAN and all others, and is willing to pay that little more in price, we know that it will be but a short time when he will say with the others who wear them, that there is nothing on earth for the money like a HANAN shoe.

At this store you are shown a full line of the season's latest styles, imported at orders by mail given special and prompt attention.

LAST SERVICES FOR LATE DEAN

WERE HELD THIS MORNING IN ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH.

SOLEMN HIGH MASS SUNG

Friends and Parishioners of Departed
Dean McGlinchy Pay Last Respects Today.

In the presence of nearly a thousand sorrowing friends, a solemn requiem high mass was sung this morning at St. Patrick's church for the late Dean R. M. McGlinchy. The church was crowded to the doors and many, who were unable to gain an entrance, were forced to remain outside until the services were concluded.

The seats in the front part of the church were reserved for the sisters of St. Joseph's Convent of Morey, the visiting priests who were present to attend the services, the common council and the city and county officials.

The casket, containing the remains of the Dean, was placed in the center aisle in front of the altar. The church was decorated with purple and black crepe hung about the walls and the casket was covered with a purple pall.

Solemn High Mass.
Solemn requiem high mass was sung at 10:30. Rev. J. J. McGlinchy of this city, a nephew of the Dean, acted as celebrant. Rev. J. F. McGlinchy, another nephew of the Dean, who lives at La Crosse, acted as sub-deacon, and Rev. Eugene Coyne, of St. Louis, acted as deacon. The sixty visiting priests assisted in the ceremonies.

Sermon by Dean Naughton.
The Very Rev. Dean Naughton, of Madison, preached the funeral sermon after the mass had been celebrated. He said in part that Dean McGlinchy had been one of the vast body of teachers who had spent their lives in Christian work. In almost fifty years spent in his chosen work he had taught thousands of children to repeat their first prayers, had instructed their hearts when they were children and had offered consolation in the last sad hours. He had given his sympathy and help to those in pain and sorrow.

One of his strongest monuments was the band of priests whom he had taught and trained and had left to carry on the work which he had just laid down.

Dean Naughton said that charity was one of the late Dean's greatest characteristics. He had that Christian love and charity in the broadest sense and was always ready with a kind word or a kind act when they were most needed. In conclusion the speaker said that while his oration life was ended, the work begun by him would still be carried on and that the effect and influence of his life would remain with us and would influence our lives for the better. That Dean McGlinchy could take the record of his deeds with him and could say, like St. Paul, that he had fought a good fight; he had finished the course; he had kept the faith.

Funeral Cortage.
At the close of the sermon the officers of the dead were performed and the casket was placed in the hearse for its last journey before reaching its final resting place in Mt. Olivet.

Six priests acted as honorary pall bearers. They were, Rev. Father Lillis of Plattville, Rev. Father McCarthy of Milwaukee, Rev. Father Egan of Hamilton, Rev. Father Egan of Hamilton, Rev. Father Egan of Hamilton, and Rev. Father Olin of Green Bay.

The active pall bearers, who walked beside the hearse, were J. B. Connors, Hugh McConn, Joseph Donahue, Philip Bohney, Thomas Leuby, Thomas Fox, George Devlin, and Joseph Ryan.

The funeral cortege was one of the longest ever seen in Janesville and testified to the high esteem and love in which the deceased was held by all who had known him.

Four members of the fire department in charge of Chief Kline led the procession. They were followed by forty-two members of the A. O. U. who marched two by two. The members of the order of Catholic Knights followed next and these were followed by the Knights of Columbus. The Catholic Order of Foresters followed the Knights of Columbus.

Next came the honorary bearers in a carriage. The hearse drawn by four black horses followed with the eight active bearers walking on either side. Fourteen carriages in which rode the visiting and local priests came after the hearse, and after them the carriages of the Sisters of St. Joseph's Convent of Morey. The nurses of the hospital and the city and county officials were in the next carriages. Several carryalls full of members of the various ladies' societies of St. Patrick's church came next and after them a long procession of private carriages.

In the entire cortege there were one hundred and fifty men marching on foot, thirty-two carriages, four carryalls and twenty private rigs. Upon reaching the cemetery the mortal remains of the late beloved Dean were tenderly lowered to their last resting place and the prayers for the dead were said over the grave.

Notice of Meeting.
The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Janesville Investment Company will be held at the law office of E. C. Grant in the Sutherland Block at 7:30 o'clock in the evening Monday, June 22nd, as provided in the by-laws. Signed, F. H. JACKMAN, Secretary.

ANNOUNCEMENT.
Yielding to the wishes of my friends in the 22nd Senatorial District, I announce myself as a candidate for the office of State Senator, to be voted for at the primary election to be held on the first Tuesday of September, 1908. Your respectfully,
JOHN NELSON CHAMBERLIN.

To the Voters of Rock County.
I wish to announce my candidacy for the office of sheriff of Rock county on the republican ticket at the coming primaries and shall appreciate the support of the voters of the county. E. H. RANSON.

R. J. RICHARDSON DIED LAST NIGHT

Well Known Resident of Janesville Passed Away Last Evening
at Age of Eighty-Two.

At 1:45 this morning R. J. Richardson passed away at his home at 2 S. Clark street. Mr. Richardson, who had been in poor health for some time, suffered a stroke of paralysis on Saturday evening. His condition after that was so serious that his son Fred Richardson of Beloit, and his daughter, Mrs. J. C. Wilmarth, of El Paso, Texas, were summoned, and at 1:45 this morning he passed to the great beyond.

An Old Resident.
Mr. Richardson was an old resident of Janesville, coming here in 1840 about the same time as his brother, Hamilton Richardson, came to this city.

He was born in New York, on June 18, 1828. His parents were Mr. and Mrs. William Richardson of Genesee county, N. Y., and were of Scotch ancestry with strains of English and Swedish Holland blood in their veins. His father was a son of William Richardson, who served as an aide-camp on the staff of General Putnam during the revolution and died "full of years and honors."

On first coming to Janesville Mr. Richardson went into the hardware business and conducted a store across from the old postoffice. Later he became interested in the New Jersey Works, and finally devoted his energies to the Globe Works company on North Main street, in which he was interested up to the present time.

Marriages and Family.
He was married to Francis Smith of Troy, New York, on May 13, 1863, in the city of Troy. Of this marriage three children survive Mr. Richardson. They are Fred S. Richardson of Beloit, Frank J. Richardson of Janesville, and Mrs. J. C. Wilmarth, of El Paso, Texas.

Mr. Richardson was a member of the I. O. O. F. and also of the Knights of Pythias.

Funeral notice will be given later.

Mrs. Dan Ryan.
The funeral services of Mrs. Dan Ryan will be held tomorrow morning at 9:15 from St. Patrick's church.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. Fred Glenn and family, of Chicago, will arrive in the city this p. m. to attend the wedding of his sister, Miss Mabel Glenn, this evening.

Rev. De Bow and mother of Rockefeller, Ill., arrived in the city this morning. He will officiate at the marriage of Miss Mabel Glenn and Elmer C. Coon, at 5:00 this p. m.

Mr. George Day, of Los Angeles, California, arrived this morning and will attend the Glenn-Coon wedding.

Dr. and Mrs. Morritt, went to Birchwood, for a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Grace Spoon has gone to Galena, to visit her sister, Mrs. Martin.

Thomas Rodden is out again after being confined to his home for some time by illness.

Charles Humming and daughter of Rockford were in Janesville yesterday.

Morris Barker of Brumawick, Mo., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Barker.

Orion Sutherland returned yesterday morning from Chicago where he was the guest of Mr. Polker.

Dr. M. A. Dignam of Boston is visiting the Misses Kennedy on North Bluff street.

Mrs. Philip Ohlweiler will leave tomorrow morning for Kalamazoo, Mich., where she will visit relatives.

GIRLS SENT TO A REFORMATORY

TRIO CAPTURED IN CHICAGO
WERE EXAMINED TODAY.

BUSY DAYS FOR THE POLICE

Cherry and Chicken Thieves Demand
ed Their Attention Last Night
—Janet Rice Unable to Furnish $1,500 Bonds.

These are busy days in police circles and the municipal court. Early last evening a young man employed in one of the local shoe factories was captured while he and a companion were engaged in picking a cherry from a tree on Victor P. Richardson's premises at the corner of St. Lawrence avenue and Sinclair street. Norman L. Carlo, who had been visiting with Mr. Richardson on the porch, caught up on the cherry-pickers and threw his arms about the first one and held him fast while Mr. Richardson sent a call to the police station. The second man took to his heels. After officer Sam Brown had escorted No. 1 to headquarters, Mr. Richardson telephoned Chief Appleby that he did not desire to make serious trouble for the boy and urged that he be released. After the chief had delivered a brief caution lecture on the advisability of keeping one's hands off of other people's property, this was done.

Pursuit of Chicken Thieves.
John C. Shuler, who lives on Palm street has a burglar alarm apparatus attached to his chicken-coop. The gang roused him about twelve o'clock last night and he looked out just in time to see two men running away from the premises. Chief Appleby and Officer John Brown, Munson and Merriam, started in pursuit. The patrol wagon and after searching the locality for some time finally arrested two suspicious characters who were "nesting" in the tall grass. By this time the Shuler family was again wrapped in slumber and it was necessary to awaken them in order that they might, if possible, identify the captives. Attired in their night robes they came out and inspected the pair but immediately the cooler-headed ones could not establish any conclusive identification and the men were able to give a fairly good account of themselves, they were finally released.

Women in Court Again.
Mrs. Janet William Rice who was bound over for trial next Monday morning at the conclusion of her preliminary examination on the charge of conducting a house of ill fame at 327 South Main street, has thus far been unable to furnish $1,500 bail bonds and is confined in the county jail. Mary Barker this morning pleaded not guilty to the charge of being an inmate of that establishment. Her examination was set for Tuesday and she was released on her own recognizance. The passing of sentence on Fay Darlington and Florence Starr who pleaded guilty and testified against Mrs. Rice yesterday, was postponed until Tuesday morning. A man claiming to be the Starr woman's husband has arrived from Milwaukee and is trying to raise money by selling some diamonds.

The court will probably accept $200 cash bail in lieu of the $100 bonds which were stipulated if he succeeds in securing the cash.

Girls Found Incurable.
May McLaughlin, age thirteen, Stella McLaughlin, age sixteen, and Florence Miller, age fifteen, who ran away to Chicago Monday afternoon after promising Judge McField to mend their ways and who were captured by a plain clothes detective there and brought back by Sheriff Fisher last evening, were examined this afternoon and found incurable. The court committed each of them to the girls' industrial school in Milwaukee until she should reach the age of twenty-one years. It developed in the examination that they obtained six dollars to pay their railroad fare from a man named Taylor on the promise that the McLaughlin girls' mother was ill and greatly in need of financial assistance. The McLaughlin girls are daughters of Louis McLaughlin who lives on Ringold street and Florence Miller's mother lives at 16 Ringold street.

Punished for Drunkenness.
Simon Wells was arrested a fine and costs of $3.10 and John Collins and Edward Fields were sent to jail five days each, for drunkenness. Darus Davis of 18 S. Washington St. was summoned to appear in court this afternoon and explain why he had failed to keep his promise to remain temperate and treat his family right, this being the understanding on which a former case against him was adjourned to the 6th of July pending good behavior.

Blind Fryer Heard From.
Louis Meeker visited the police station this morning and exhibited letters written by Fred Fryer and mailed at Stevens Point demanding that Meeker, his former landlord, send him a dog which the former has been keeping on the supposition that Fryer gave it to him. Another of these missives, in which appears to be the same handwriting as Fryer's, purports to come from the sheriff of Portage county and threatens him with punishment if he fails to comply.

Blind Fryer has not yet been heard from. In one passage of his letters, "I have got a big lawsuit pending in circuit court against Rock county." This indictment is undoubtedly to be based on the county's action in confining Fryer at the county farm before his alleged attempt to do great bodily injury to his wife.

MEDAL PLAY FOR GOLF BALLS

POCKETED LOSS OF FOUR DOLLARS A DAY

That's What the Street Railway Co.
Claims It Will Be Able to Show to the State Railroad Commission.

"We will be able to show that the actual loss in running the Forest Park car averaged from $2 to $4 a day; that as few as 11 fares frequently represented the net receipts of a whole forenoon; and that the branch has never been a paying investment," said Attorney M. G. Jeffries today.

The complaint to the state railroad commission, was drawn up in the name of Alderman H. W. Brown on the 16th, and the company was given ten days in which to answer. For some reason or other the answer was not served until yesterday. Officer John Brown presented it to Mayor Murphy and the question might be raised as to whether service on anyone but an officer of the company was proper service and also as to whether the three days intervening before the expiration of the customary 10 days, was ample time to give the concern for submitting its reply. According to Attorney Jeffries, however, these objections will probably not be raised and the investigation will begin on the 26th or soon thereafter.

Meeting Postponed: The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. met last night to choose a new physical director. Owing to the fact that all the information asked could not be given at that time the board took no action but adjourned until next Monday night.

To Paint Court House: Preparations are being made to paint the court house. Men are at work now repairing the iron work on the roof and the painting will be begun as soon as they have finished. The contract for painting the building was awarded to William Coleman.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Rose Terrill.

The art of keeping cool is a greater one than the art of keeping warm. A good furnace, a warm house and plenty of clothes and the trick is done, but when the thermometer plays tag with the mercury's then one echoes Terence's wish, "to take on this flesh and sit in nice cool boxes." The housekeeper can do much toward keeping the house cool and pleasant, and thus soothing the tired spirits of the faithful family. She must also be business, however, and throw all the windows and doors wide to the cool morning air, while the world is still asleep. When the sun begins to dring the dew, close windows down to a narrow opening and draw the shades on the sunny side of the house. Shut the cool air in and the hot air out, and the house will be pleasant all day on even very warm days. Few object to the cool gloom that is still fresh and sweet, and the sign of relief that the tired and warm pedestrian gives as she drops into the cushionless willow chairs is reward enough to the early riser. Indeed, the beauty of the world at early morn is reward enough, anyway.

The nurse must be carefully planned in these sultry days. Fresh fruits, chilled to a greater degree in the ice box, is the best friend of the woman who does her own work, and salads that can be made either early in the day or just at meal times help her to take the comfort that is due her.

Potato salad that can be made early in the day. Boil six good sized potatoes and slice while hot into a bowl; add one-half of a small onion, chopped fine, one green pepper from which all seeds have been removed, and the green pulp shredded with the scissors, a teaspoonful of salt; mix four tablespoonfuls of olive oil and one of vinegar, pour over the mixture while hot and stand aside to cool, place in the ice box and when ready to use serve on chilled lettuce leaves.

The following salad dressing will keep several days in the ice box and is delicious with tomatoes, or with a meat and vegetable salad.

Two eggs, whites and yolks beaten together; two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of salt and one cup of elder vinegar. Cook in a double boiler, stirring it all the time. When it is thick enough set aside to cool. This may be used just as it is, or with a few spoonfuls of whipped cream added just as it is sent to the table.

A sauce that is delicious with cold meats is sauce vinaigrette, and is made as follows:

Put the yolk of a hard boiled egg to a powder, set the bowl in larger one containing cracked ice, that the egg and oil may mix properly. Add three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, slowly stirring all the time; have ready two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped onion, one even tablespoonful of salt, one of white pepper, four tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one of these may be Tarragon vinegar if you like the flavor. Mix all thoroughly and send to the table with a small bowl of chopped parsley. This is also delicious with cold asparagus or other cold vegetables that may be used as a salad.

Frozen desserts are always welcome and the simple parfait and mousses are the easiest to make as they require no work to freeze. Made early in the day, packed in the mould, covered with ice and salt in the proportion of one part of coarse salt to two parts of crushed ice, and set in a cool place, and the question of dessert is settled, in parfait or mousses while freezing as this destroys the distinctive texture.

Here is a simple yogurt cream that is easy to make. Dissolve one ounce of gelatine in a pint of warm water, stir it into a pint of "very sweet and very sour" lemonade, into which grate the rind of one lemon. Heat till the gelatine is thoroughly dissolved, strain and set aside to cool. When cool, but not set, beat in a pint of cream which has been whipped very stiff. Pack in a mould and bury in the ice, and salt mixture till required. A parfait that requires more labor, but which well repays the effort is made as follows:

One quart of berries heated and run through a sieve; add one cup of sugar and cook till thick; beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, pour the hot berry mixture slowly over the eggs and beat all the time till cool; add the froth from one pint of whipped cream that has been drained of all liquid. This may be packed as for the velvet or frozen in the ice cream freezer.

Fruit for breakfast and fruit for luncheon and again fruit in some form for dinner should be the order every day during the summer months. Use the fireless cooker when you can, do your work early in the day, live simply and keep serene. Remember that no meal is pleasant when the first course is a nicely stewed haddock, and that almost anything tastes good when the lady at the head of the table "looks pleasant."

Sale of Opium in France.

According to the Echo de Paris, the government has under consideration a decree more strictly regulating the sale of opium than has hitherto been the case. The new decree will, it says, provide that henceforth only such apothecaries and druggists as receive special authorization may keep or sell opium. Furthermore, they must ascertain the object for which the drug is purchased, and keep a register of that object, as well as of the name and address of the buyer and the quantity sold.

Witch's Comb in a Window.

So many "precious" things are on sale every day that one grows rather skeptical about them. A curio shop uptown has in its window a comb with an alliterative and alluring legend that it was "worn by a witch." It is one of those high shell objects familiar in old portraits, and though it is not carved, as are many specimens, the card excites the interest of passers-by. Likely enough some girl who had ancestors in Salem, Mass., will buy the comb and proclaim it an heirloom.—New York Press.

Two Kinds of Fame.

When Haydon, the painter, visited Stratford, he held forth about Shakespeare to some rustics he met in a wayside inn. They told him that Stratford then contained "another wonderful fellow, one John Cooper."

"Why, what has he done?"

"Why, sir, I'll tell 'ee. He's lived 90 years in this here town, man and boy, and never had the toothache!"

Club for the Babies.

A Paris journalist has founded a babies' club. It is a spacious and pleasant building, with a garden and a clubhouse where games of all kinds are provided. There is a Punch and Judy show, and a cafe, where sweets, cakes, tea, milk and various kinds of lemonade are sold to members and their parents, while there are also many toy ships and a theater.

Omnibus.

"The bookkeeper," said the junior partner, "has been married nearly four months now."

"Well," demanded the senior partner, "what of that?"

"Why, he hasn't asked for an increase in salary."

"Hogwash! We must have his accounts examined."—Catholic Standard and Times.

SLEEPER LEAVES CARACAS

UNITED STATES LEGATION THERE IS ABANDONED.

Reason for Departure of the Charge Not Clear—Castro Has Trouble with Holland.

Washington, June 24.—The state department Tuesday received official notification of the departure of Jacob Slesper, secretary of the American legation at Caracas, Venezuela. Mr. Slesper's departure leaves the United States without diplomatic representation in the South American republic. The affairs of the legation will be looked after by a representative of the Brazilian legation.

For the past three years, since questions between the United States and Venezuela first arose, Minister Russell has been unable to get any satisfaction from the Venezuelan government. While the fact that the United States has no diplomatic representation in that country may result in the withdrawal of the Venezuelan attaché here, no advice had been received at the Venezuelan legation.

The present situation in diplomatic terms is known as a state of expectancy. The questions in dispute between this country and Venezuela have been in the hands of the collector of the state department for the past few years, but no satisfaction has been given the American representatives by President Castro. The plague which exists in nearly all of the Venezuelan ports may have induced Mr. Slesper to obtain a leave of absence at this time.

Caracas, June 22, Via Willemstad, June 24.—The members of the American legation are awaiting the arrival of the United States gunboat Marietta at Porto Cabello, the warship having been ordered there for the purpose of transferring them to the United States. Jacob Slesper, who has been acting as charge d'affaires since the departure of the American minister, W. W. Russell, and Lieut. Francis A. Huggles, the military attaché, withdrew from the legation at Caracas on Saturday and proceeded to Porto Cabello. The interests of the United States were placed in charge of the Brazilian legation, as the representatives of the European nations are having considerable friction with President Castro's government. The American consular agent, John Brower, remains here in charge of the archives.

President Castro returned here suddenly a few days ago after a long absence in the interior and his arrival attracted much attention. All kinds of rumors are current and the withdrawal of the representatives of the United States is not quite understood by Venezuelans. It is probable, too, that there will be an early rupture with Holland and there are reports that a revolution against the government is being organized in Colombia.

WANT JOHNSON ON TICKET.

Democrats Wish Governor to Be Mr. Bryan's Running Mate.

Denver, Col., June 24.—Even among the few Democrats of prominence who have come to Denver to attend the Democratic convention which will be held in this city beginning two weeks from Tuesday, the choice of a candidate for vice-president is the leading theme, and it is already evident that in this respect at least the convention will be a counterpart of the Republican convention at Chicago.

As a choice among candidates Gov. Johnson has a decided lead. Little attention is paid to the announcement that he is not a candidate and would not accept. Those who favor him say that while he has been successful in Minnesota, he has not won such a place in his party that he could afford to decline a nomination for second place on a Democratic national ticket.

GEORGIA DOESN'T INSTRUCT.

Democratic Delegates to Denver Convention Are Not Pledged.

Atlanta, Ga., June 24.—Georgia will send an unpledged delegation to the Democratic national convention at Denver. The Democratic state convention met here Tuesday, selected delegates-at-large and from the different congressional districts to the Denver convention. Normally ratified the nomination of the state ticket headed by Joseph M. Brown for governor, adopted a platform and adjourned. A resolution endorsing Thomas E. Watson for the second place on the Democratic national ticket was overwhelmingly defeated.

BANK OFFICER KILLS HIMSELF.

Columbus, O., June 24.—Harry Haggott, cashier of the People's Bank of the East side, was found dead in an open field in Bullitt Park, a suburb, Tuesday, with a bullet hole in his head. Indications pointed to suicide. Investigation has developed an alleged shortage of about $5,000 in his accounts.

MISSOURI AT TOP NOTCH.

Omaha, Neb., June 24.—The Missouri river at Omaha shows the highest stage in 27 years. An unofficial reading at five o'clock Tuesday afternoon showed a stage of 19.5 feet, and still rising slowly.

WOMAN INSISTS ON SUICIDE.

New York, June 24.—Fighting off the daughter who was frantically trying to prevent her from taking a fatal draught of poison, Mrs. Amelia Frances Hill, wife of Edward K. Hill, a prominent official of the Empire Subway company, succeeded in swallowing herself in her room with the poison bottle Tuesday night, swallowed the deadly contents of the bottle and was beyond medical aid when her apartment was broken into.

JOE JEFFERSON'S SON DIES.

New York, June 24.—After an illness of several weeks, Charles B. Jefferson, the former theatrical manager and oldest son of the late Joseph Jefferson, died Tuesday night in St. Luke's hospital from a complication of stomach troubles. He is survived by a widow and four daughters. The funeral services will be private and the interment will take place at Sandwich, Mass., where his father is buried.

FLOODS ARE CAUSE OF SUICIDE.

Venice, Ill., June 24.—Mrs. Mary Whitecamp, aged 48 years, wife of Henry Whitecamp, one of the wealthiest landowners in Madison county, committed suicide at her home near here Tuesday by cutting her throat with a butcher knife. Despondency over the havoc wrought on the Whitecamp lands by the Mississippi river flood is thought to have caused her act.

BATTLE OF RIVAL SULTANS DUE.

Tangier, June 24.—Advisers received here state that a large force of the supporters of Sultan Abdul-Aziz are now within 12 hours of Fez, and that they are preparing to attack Mulai Isaid, the usurping sultan.

GREAT DAY FOR YALE AND TAFT

SONS OF OLD ELI GO FAIRLY WILD OVER "BIG BILL."

HARVARD BEATEN AT BALL

War Secretary the Center of Noyse Demonstrations—Marches at the Head of His Class.

New Haven, Conn., June 24.—Tuesday was a glorious day for "Old Eli," a glorious day for Secretary William Howard Taft. "Big Bill," as he is affectionately termed by all old Yale men, was the center of all the enthusiasm surrounding the Yale commencement festivities.

Thousands of graduates, students and citizens of New Haven followed the war secretary's every movement. From the moment he appeared in the morning in a big automobile at Woodbridge hall, where he attended an important meeting of the Yale corporation, until night, when he left the Edwards House—the headquarters of his class of '78—for the New Haven Country club to attend his class dinner, thousands of people constantly were about him. They manifested their affectionate regard for him in every conceivable way. Classes of graduates serenaded him with bands; hundreds of friends extended personal greetings to him on the street, and at the Yale-Harvard game in the afternoon, and as the secretary marched with his class to and from Yale field the streets were banked with people anxious to pay their respects to the war secretary.

Taft the Feature All Day. It was, indeed, a Taft day. Beginning practically at the Ledyard memorial dedication, where the secretary delivered a most felicitous address in memory of the Yale man of '88 who laid down his life in the cause of his country, it ended in the midst of his classmates who had assembled to pay tribute to their alma mater, and their eminent fellow member.

Leaving Woodbridge hall after the dedication of the flagstaff, Mr. Taft proceeded directly to the Edwards House, where arrangements had been made to photograph the class of '78. Luncheon was served soon afterward, Mrs. Taft and Master Charlie Taft, the wife and son of the secretary, being among the guests.

MARCHES WITH HIS CLASS.

Directly after the luncheon and meeting, the class of '78, headed by Secretary Taft and Judge Howard C. Hollister of Chesham, and Master Charlie Taft, formed for its march to Yale field to witness the Yale-Harvard football game. Mr. Taft dismounted the use of an automobile which was placed at his disposal and insisted, notwithstanding the excessive heat, upon marching with his classmates.

As the class of '78 swung through the entrance of Yale field, headed by "Big Bill," the vast crowd of 14,000 rose to its feet and, under the leadership of the yell and song directors, began the thrilling Yale cry, with its added snapper of nine "Tafts." Secretary Taft never will forget the scenes which he witnessed during the next 30 minutes. The great throng remained standing as the parade of picturesque garbed classes marched around the field.

YALE DEFEATS HARVARD.

The parade delayed the game for half an hour. The secretary had desired for weeks to see a ball game "for blood," and that desire was gratified. Both teams were on edge and the contest was replete with brilliant plays on both sides.

Taft's cup of happiness was filled to overflowing, for not only was the crowd a record-breaker in his honor, but Yale whipped her rival by the score of 3 to 0 in a game which was full of better playing than either team has shown this season. The game was won by Yale's batting ability.

Insidious Heritage of Young America. In a trolley the other day was a little boy of six or so who was not content to sit quietly by his mother, but insisted upon kneeling upon the seat and looking out of the window at the moving street and people. His mother labored with him, trying to make him understand that she thought it better for him to sit down beside her and watch the people go by in the car. But he was determined, and stayed where he was. Another argument apparently occurred to the mother and she whispered something to him, something inaudible to the other passengers. The child's voice was then heard, incisive and penetrating:

"But why can't I look out of the window?"

His mother remained silent, possibly searching for a reason that should be convincing, and before she found it, the boy spoke again, this time with a hint of doubt and perplexity in his voice:

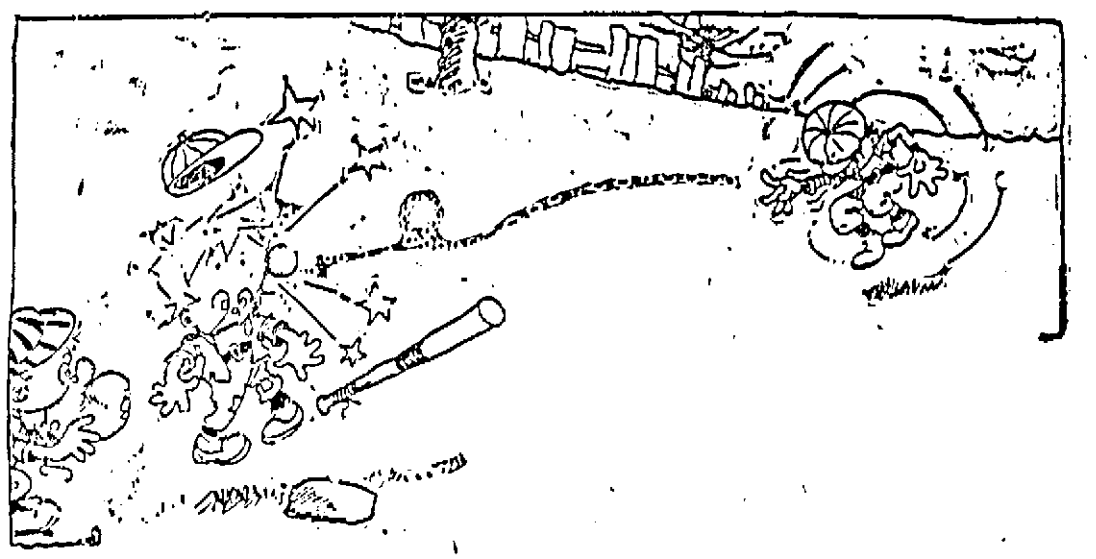

"Does it cost more to kneel up and look out of the window?"

Had Hal Laughed Pat. English John, and Pat, were two friendly workmen who were constantly tilting, each one trying to outwit the other. "Are you good at measurement?" asked John. "I am that," said Pat quickly. "Then could you tell me how many shirts I could get out of a yard?" asked John. "Sure," said Pat. "It depends on whose yard you get into."

Mount for State Treasurer. Joliet, Ill., June 24.—Former Mayor John B. Mount Tuesday announced his candidacy for state treasurer on the Democratic ticket.

Heat Kills 18 in Chicago. Chicago, June 24.—Heat claimed a toll of 18 human lives in Chicago Tuesday. This brings the total of victims of the hot wave in the last two days up to 23. Twenty-three prostrations were reported to the police.

KAYSER GLOVES. Look in the box, if you find the name "KAYSER" you have the genuine. The kind that don't wear out at the finger ends. Guaranteed with every pair.

The Catcher—Gee, Willie, dat's the fifth time he's hit yonse. Dat shows he's afraid of yer mighty bat, all right.

CIVIC AWAKENINGS.

A General Cleanup Is of First Consideration.

Many are the anxious inquirers who apply for information as to the first work to attack in the fight for civic beauty. The question is usually of only local significance and may be solved by those interested if they will but observe the most pressing needs of the community. As a rule, nothing will so effectively and so cheaply improve a section as the cleaning of streets, parkways and vacant lots. This accomplished, an air of general thrift and cleanliness is at once noticeable by all, whether residents or visitors. Individuals will catch the fever, and a general cleanup of private premises will still further improve the scene, says the Los Angeles Times. Some funds will be needed for the public work, and these may be obtained by starting an improvement association with a low membership fee, and the organization need not live beyond the cleanup period.

Whether the association is to be made permanent should be gauged by the interest and enthusiasm manifest by the general public. If only a few are interested the fight for permanence will prove a hard one, but if enthusiasm dominates the whole people do not rest with a simple cleanup, which is only a negative move, but engage in some permanent improvement looking to the beautifying and bettering of the whole field under consideration. Doubtless the easiest task and the one most productive of lasting results in proportion to the cost is the planting of street trees. If money is only on hand for a single block of planting, do not be discouraged, but make this block complete and orderly, and it will then not prove so hard to add thereto. At this stage of the game some enthusiastic, energetic workers will be needed to fan the feeble spark into an active flame. If you can get one street planted you can eventually and in the near future secure the adornment of all. Any community with well planted streets is well on the highway toward the goal of the city beautiful, and less difficulty will be experienced with every successive step.

SCHOOL GROUND BETTERMENT

What Can Be Done to Make Common Property Attractive.

While we are imbued with the gardening fever let us look to the district school yard and note if it has all we could wish for in the way of plant life. If not, what can you do to make it more interesting, instructive or attractive? Of course there are school yards where there is not sufficient space for flowers, others where the school board has covered the garden space with temporary buildings and still others where they have built so ugly and unsightly or insufficiently as to disgust the neighborhood residents, who will do nothing until the wrong is righted.

As a rule, however, school yards in general are capable of pleasing effects by the judicious planting of tree, shrub and vine. Where such is the case it is well to bear in mind that it is the one piece of neighborhood property in which all are interested, all have a common ownership and that upon all its condition reflects credit or criticism. What is the condition of your school yard? Can you individually or with your neighbors collectively do anything to improve it? If so, act that it may be a credit and a comfort to you and yours.

The Acropolis. The Acropolis is the ancient citadel of Athens. It is a rocky height rising precipitously from the plain so as to be inaccessible on all sides but the west. It was the fortress, sanctuary and museum of that city.

To Call Out Stations. "The number of people who speak the English language is now estimated at 175,000,000," remarked the boarder who had been gleaming statistics from a patent medicine almanac.

"So?" rejoined the funny old bachelor at the pedal extremity of the mahogany. "It's a wonder they don't employ some of them as guards on the elevated trains."

Had Hoped for Real Money. "Mr. Heavyweight," said the minister, "is willing to subscribe $10,000 for a new church, provided we can get other subscriptions making the same amount."

"Yet you seem disappointed," said his wife.

"Yes, I was in hopes he would contribute $100 in cash."—Town and Country.

Last Car leaves Main and Milwaukee Streets for Cemetery at 9:20, for Milton Ave. 9:40, for Main St. 9:55.

MAKES OPEN BID TO MEN OF ANY PARTY

Democratic State Chairman Issues His Call for Another State Convention.

H. H. Hanson, chairman of the Democratic state committee, has issued a formal call for a delegate state convention to be held in Milwaukee, on Wednesday, July 22. The purpose of the convention, as stated in the call, are for "perfecting the party organization in the state and formulating a platform setting forth the principles and policies for which the democratic party of Wisconsin stands, thereby giving aid and counsel to the candidates of said party whose legal duty it is to formulate the party platform and who will be chosen at the September primaries and for the transaction of such other business as it may decide upon."

All voters irrespective of past party affiliations who believe in democratic principles are urged to co-operate in electing delegates. Proxies will only be recognized when presented by actual residents of the same county as the duly elected delegates.

The representation to which each county is entitled is designated below, the apportionment being made on the basis of one delegate to every two hundred votes or fraction thereof, cast for the democratic candidate for the presidency of 1912.

GENERAL SUMMARY OF WEATHER DURING WEEK

The weather during the week was generally warm and dry, with some severe local storms in the southern and western sections. After the morning of the 15th the temperature rose steadily and was decidedly above the normal during the last three days of the week. The average departure of the weekly mean from the normal was about plus two degrees.

The precipitation was light and Delicious Danana Cream.

This recipe is highly recommended by one of our correspondents; try it for dessert tomorrow.

Peel five large bananas, rub smooth with five tablespoons of sugar. Add one teaspoon sweet cream beaten to a stiff froth, then add one 10c package of Lemon Jell-O dissolved in 1½ cups boiling water. Pour into mold and when cold garnish with candied cherries. Serve with whipped cream, or any good pudding sauce. JELL-O is sold by all grocers at 10c per package.

Three hundred at Kimball Luncheon

And Card Party Given at Assembly Hall Yesterday Afternoon—Most Notable Society Event of Summer.

Nearly three hundred ladies were guests of Mrs. George F. Kimball at the one o'clock luncheon and card party given at Assembly hall yesterday afternoon. The large hall-room was elaborately decorated with green and gold and flowers for the occasion and kept cool and comfortable by numerous electric fans. After the delicious luncheon had been served in four courses, the guests on one side of ribbon barriers which divided the hall into two sections, devoted their attention to six handed euchre, while those on the other side played bridge whist. Mrs. Albert Kemmett and Miss Ada Pond won the prizes at euchre, while the lucky number and consolation trophies at bridge went to Mrs. E. V. Walton and Mrs. Charles Schuler. Miss Anna Martin of Burlington, the Misses Podd and Myers and Mrs. Bradley of Beloit were among the out-of-town guests.

ISSUES WARNING TO THE CHEESEMAKERS

University Says to Beware of Conditions During the Month of July.

In announcing the scores of the cheesemakers' exhibit at the University of Wisconsin dairy school this month, Mr. Matthew Michaels, in charge of the scoring exhibitions, issues a warning against the gassy and phony curds which are prevalent in the month of July, advising that the milk and mother starter be kept well covered, and all utensils used in connection with the starter, be well sealed before use. All of the seventy-two entries in this month's exhibit, both of cheddar and brick cheeses, scored above 90 per cent. In the cheddar class high score, 96.65, was awarded Willard Mortenson of Clintonville. R. P. Hanson of Sheboygan Falls and William Winder of Rockford bridge took second place with a score of 95.75, and third place, Edward T. A. Thibault of Glenbeulah, who scored 96. High score in the brick class was 96.83, made by Casper Anderson of La Crosse. J. Rothelbach, Jr., Ankenyville, made second score, 94.33, and Otto Kunn of Coon Valley was third with 93.33. The highest score of the exhibit was 96.83, and the lowest 90.23, giving an average of 93.13. The highest moisture content was 40, and the lowest 32.4, making the average 35.4.

Nearly all of the cheddar cheesemakers exhibiting use starters, and have little trouble in handling gassy or phony curds, unless the gas producing germs are added to the milk with the starters. In that case it is difficult to make first class cheese of the curd, because it is almost impossible to develop the required amount of dry acid. To keep the starter free from such germs as well as from other impurities, it is absolutely necessary that the milk, as soon as heated, and the mother starter, be kept well covered, and that all utensils used with the starter be placed in boiling water before use. Too often starter pans are left uncovered to dust and flies.

IMMIGRATION FOR WISCONSIN.
The publisher is just in receipt of the first issue of a publication known as the Wisconsin Homeseeker, issued by the Chicago & North Western Ry. for the purpose of stimulating immigration to Wisconsin and furnishing information in regard to its natural resources.

A series of letters from settlers is published in the Homeseeker, in which these pioneers tell in an interesting way something of their experiences in establishing new homes and developing their land into profitable farms.

The North Western is desirous of securing as many more testimonials of this kind as possible. A letter from you would appeal strongly to the prospective homeseeker, and every homeseeker is earnestly invited to write a letter telling of the crops, soil, climate, schools, the cost of getting a start, etc., for use in this manner, and send it to us together with the names and addresses of friends in the East who would be interested in having a copy of the "Homeseeker." Illustrated books, maps and other literature mailed to them free of charge. Address all communications on the subject to Mr. W. H. Kiskern, P. T. M., C. & N. W. Ry., Chicago, Ill.

HEAVY RAIN WASHED AWAY THE BRIDGES

And Party Driving Across the Country to Evansville Forced to Stay at Farm House.

Evansville, June 23.—Last Saturday Miss Martha Andrews and her brother, Byron Andrews and wife, of Washington, D. C., Chas. Andrews and daughter, Miss Belle, of Elgin, S. Dak. drove to their old home in Argyle for a visit with friends. This part of the journey was very much enjoyed but they found the return trip less pleasurable. They were not aware when they started home Sunday evening that the heavy rain of the previous night had washed out some of the bridges. They were well on their way when this fact was brought to their minds quite forcibly and they found it necessary to go some distance out of their way in order to reach home. They drove on in the darkness until about midnight when they were compelled to remain at a farm house until daylight. Mr. Andrews and daughter left for their home in Elgin, S. Dak., yesterday after a three weeks' visit.

The members of the Woman's Relief Corps will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Charles Ballard at Union Village next Thursday afternoon and evening.

The young ladies of the Epworth League gave a miscellaneous shower at the M. E. parsonage last evening for Miss Ethel Lewis. A very pleasant evening was passed with progressive games and other amusements.

Mrs. Nelson Whitson, who returned from Delavan, yesterday, went to Oregon today to attend the funeral of Herbert Bennett.

Fred Shigham is the new clerk in the grocery store of W. J. Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thorpe of Bridgeport, S. Dak., who have been visiting relatives here, left yesterday for Janesville where they will be the guest of the former's brother, A. C. Thorpe and other relatives in that city. Mrs. Thorpe will be remembered here as Miss Mary Tolles, daughter of the late Elijah Tolles, of Union.

On Thursday of this week there will be a reunion of the Thorpe family at the cottage of Allie Richards at Lake Kegonsa. They will be joined by relatives from Milton, including the Paul family.

Miss Lena Coury will arrive from San Francisco this afternoon for a visit to Miss Cora Harris and Mrs. Albert Ballard in Union.

A party consisting of V. A. Axtell and family, Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Colony, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Morgan, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Klingner, enjoyed a day's outing at Lake Kegonsa Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Klingner are from Holbrook, Neb., and have been here for several days visiting relatives and friends. On Saturday afternoon a reception was given at the home of Mrs. V. A. Axtell in honor of Mrs. Klingner.

E. H. Graves and wife of Madison are guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Shawson.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Harnard left yesterday for First lake where they will spend the summer.

Mrs. Hannah Ballard returned to Beloit yesterday after spending several days with relatives.

Mrs. Henry Apfel is having a new cement walk laid along the front and rear of her property on East Main street.

Mrs. Jennie Glidden and grandson Elsie Libby went to Brooklyn today for a visit at the home of Bert Glidden.

Chas. Randolph, whose father was formerly general manager of the lumber yard now owned by the Myers brothers, is here from Des Moines, Ia., and will spend the summer with Mrs. Eugene Harris of this place, and Mrs. Chas. Ballard, in Union.

Number of Cases Were Heard and Will be Submitted to the Court on Briefs.

Monroe, Wis., June 23.—The June term of the Green county circuit court was adjourned yesterday afternoon and Judge Grimm and Court Reporter Grant, returned to Janesville.

A number of cases were heard and will be submitted to the court on briefs. A divorce was granted Ida Maether Stark, of this city, from Gustave Stark, who made no appearance. Judge Grimm will come here the first Monday in December to hear citizen suit matters.

Ch. 11, of this city, will go to Camp Douglas Saturday with the 1st regiment, W. N. G., for the annual encampment. The regiment will break camp on Friday, one day earlier than usual owing to the fact that Saturday is July 4th.

Mrs. Wm. Bauman, Mrs. Herman Krueger, Miss Nora Holtz and Chas. Schlar, of this city, attended the wedding of Miss Alta M. Schlar, formerly of this city, and Mr. Kenneth Goshall, which was celebrated in Milwaukee yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Emma Schlar, 849 South Pierce street.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Blumer, Jr., Mrs. F. L. Hodges, Miss Grace Miller, W. H. McGrath and A. L. Osborn are in Milwaukee for the marriage of Miss Boscoe Dean and Mr. Frederick J. Blumer, which will be celebrated at St. John's Episcopal church at eight o'clock this evening. Miss Miller will be one of the bridesmaids and Mr. McGrath will act as one of the ushers.

The Monroe military band will give the first open air concert of the season on the public square this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Capen went to Augusta, Wis., for the marriage of their son, Clark Capen, and Miss Berline Culbertson, which will be celebrated there at three o'clock this afternoon. The young couple will reside at Oak Park, Ill.

Dr. W. B. Ghugal and Dr. S. H. Meyer are in Milwaukee attending the annual meeting of the State Medical society.

J. H. Durst, Thomas Lachinger and J. H. Theller attended the funeral of Henry Marty, Sr., at New Glarus, yesterday.

Mrs. Elizabeth James and daughter, Miss Marlin James, are visiting relatives in Wisconsin.

R. T. Holcomb has nomination papers in circulation as a candidate for the republican nomination for sheriff.

Miss Alice Murray returned to her home at Beloit after a visit to Miss Frances Douglas.

Richard Palmer, of Akron, Ohio, was called here by the illness of his brother, Rev. J. H. Palmer, who is suffering from heart trouble.

Mrs. Villa White and daughter are at Preppert to spend a week with relatives.

Odors of the Kitchen.
At a cooking lecture in Brooklyn recently a woman in the audience, during the conference that followed the lecture, said that she had learned when boiling any vegetable of high flavor, such as cabbage or onions, to do the work in the oven. This saved the permeating of the kitchen and other parts of the house with the malodorous steam.

Constitution for Girls.
Beware of the homely little girl, for she is more than likely to be the handsomest of her set when she is ready to leave school, and will no doubt remember any slights that were offered her when she was an ugly little thing. It is seldom that the prettiest child grows into a very beautiful woman, and that is no doubt the way nature even up things.

Who Likes Lemon Pie?
Everybody, but they are expensive and hard to make in the old way. You should try at once "GOLD-PLE" Preparation for delicious lemon pie. It is made from the choicest ingredients absolutely pure. Merely place your pie in the oven while it bakes. A lady says: "I will never again try to make lemon pie in the old way while I use GOLD-PLE Preparation. Each package enough for two large pies. 10 cents."

Europe's Skin Specialist Says Dan. of It is Caused by Parasites. Prof. Unna, Hamburg, Germany, an authority on skin diseases, says that dandruff is as contagious as any other malodorous disease, and that a common source of the spread of dandruff is the use of the same hair brush by different persons. He says that dandruff is caused by a germ, but it is also an anti-dandruff which will prevent the catching of dandruff whatever through contact of another's brush. Sold by druggists. PREPARING FOR GREAT INTER-

The sport event, which the college world looks forward to with greatest interest this spring is probably the struggle between the crews of Yale and Harvard, for supremacy with the oar and shell. Both Yale and Harvard crews are training hard for the contest which comes next month, and the preparations are being watched with deepest interest by all college alumni

In a Morocco Harem,
Every woman in the harem has her face decorated in the most curious manner. The practice is to elongate the eyebrows to the ears and to embellish the chin with little points of black paint. In contrast with the men, their complexions are very fair, as they are shut within walls and are never exposed to the sun.

Attractions of Flowers.
A flower has an almost human way of first attracting insects. This is by appealing to their fondness for sweet things. There is secreted in every flower a store of honey, large or small,
as the case may be, to which the midges, the butterflies, the bees, the blue-bottle fly and other insects are attracted.

Gossip.
Gossip is a sort of smoke that comes from the dirty tobacco-pipes of those who diffuse it; it proves nothing but the bad taste of the smoker.

impressed was Brown with Rev. Dr.

life in this sad world that he could not forget his exclamation: "Beautiful, beautiful!" said his wife: "I think you are a very poor judge. The rim is entirely too large, and those flowers are very, very unbecoming!"—Judge.

Soldiers' Head Covering.
The British soldier carries a helmet which weighs nearly 14 pounds; the helmet of the Prussian infantryman weighs only a trifle over 11 ounces;
while the Italian is still better off with a kepi which turns the scale at between 11 ounces and 12 ounces.

Removing Acid.
Acid stains may be removed by wetting the spots and laying on them sals of warm water. Let this stand for a few minutes, then rub the stain without using more water.

S.S.S. CURES SKIN DISEASES

When the blood is pure and healthy, the skin will be soft, smooth, and free from all blemishes and eruptions; but when some acid humor takes root in the circulation, its presence is quickly manifested by some form of skin disease. The skin receives its necessary nourishment and strength from the blood. When, however, this vital fluid becomes a humor-laden stream, it can no longer preserve the healthy, natural appearance of the skin, but by its acid, impure nature continually irritates and inflames the delicate tissues and fibres and keeps the cuticle in a diseased and disfigured condition.
External applications cannot reach the blood, and therefore are beneficial only for their ability to reduce inflammation, and assist in keeping the parts clean. To cure any skin trouble the blood must be purified of the humors that are causing the trouble. S. S. S. drives out the humors from the blood so that the skin, instead of being irritated and diseased, is nourished by a healthy, cooling stream. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of impure matter, all acids and humors, and restores the blood to its normal, pure condition, thereby curing every form of skin disease or affection. Book on skin diseases and any medical advice free to all who write.

Chapter Twenty-three

THE king's ambition and pride
had quivered under the threat of a cruel blow. The charge against Lepage wounded him hardly less deeply. He regarded his body servant with the trustful affection which grows on an indolent man in course of years of countless days of consulting, trusting, relying on one ever present, ever ready, always trustworthy. Lepage had been with him nearly thirty years. There was hardly a secret of the king's manhood which he had not known and kept. At last had he turned traitor!

Stenoves had failed to allow for this human side of the matter—how much more alone the revelation would make the king feel, how much more exposed and helpless, just, moreover, when sickness made his invaluable servant
more indispensable still. A forlorn dignity filled the king's simple question,
"Is it true, Lepage?"

Lepage's impassivity vanished. He, too, was deeply moved. The source of guilt was on him of guilt against his master. It drove him on beyond itself to a fierce rage against those who had goaded him into his disobedience, whose action and plans had made his disobedience right, for right now he believed and felt it. His talks with Zorkovitch had crystallized his suspicions into confident certainty. He was carried beyond thinking of what effect his outburst might have on his own fortunes or how it might distress
the already harassed king. He struck back fiercely at his accuser, all his unfettered quickness of passion finding vent
in the torrent of words he poured forth in excuse or justification. He spoke his native French very quickly, one word jostling over another, his arms flashing like windmills and his hair bristling, as it seemed, with defiance.

"Yes, it's true, sir. I disobeyed your majesty—for the first time in thirty years! For the first time in my life, sir, I did it. And why? Because I was right. Because it was for honor.
I was angry, yes. I had been scolded because Count Alexis had me call him
'prince' and you heard me do it. Yes,
I was angry. Was it my fault? Had I told him he was a prince? No! Who had told him he was a prince? Don't ask me, sir. Ask somebody else. For my part, I know well the difference between one who is a prince and one who is not. Oh, I'm not ignorant of that! I know, too, the difference between one who is a queen and one who is not—oh,
with the utmost respect to Mme. la Comtesse! But I know it, and I remember it. Does everybody else remember it?"

He stopped for a moment and clutched
at his stiff, tight collar as though to wrench it away from his neck and let the stream of his words flow even more freely. While he paused nobody spoke,
Stenoves' heavy gaze was on the king,
Stenoves' eyes discreetly on the ceiling. The countess looked scared, and they made a mistake? Would it have been better to run the risk of what Le-page could do? The king's hands were on the table in front of him. They trembled where they lay.

"Why wasn't the prince to know?
Because then he wouldn't go on his journey! His journey after the German princess!" He faced Stenoves now, boldly and defiantly, pointing a forefinger at him. "Yes, they wanted him to go, yes, they did! Why, sir?
To marry a princess—a great princess?
Was that what they wanted? Eh, but it would have been little use for Count Alexis to ask me to call him a prince then! And Mme. la Comtesse—with the utmost respect to Mme. la Comtesse—
she wanted a great princess here? Oh, she wanted that mightily, to be sure!"
The king stirred uneasily in his chair.
"Sir, will you listen to him?" the countess broke in.

His answer was cold. "I listen to every man before I order him to be punished."
"Yes, they wanted him to go. Yes, certainly! For he trains his men at

to the king with another servant.
"May I answer, sir? May I tell you?
The mother of Prince Alexis commands in the palace. Slava is ruled by the friends of Captain Meltich." His voice fell to an ironical murmur. "And the prince is far off—seeking a great princess! Sir, do you see the picture?"
Stenoves suddenly lowered his eyes
from the ceiling and looked at the ges-tulating little man, with a smile.
"Such imagination in the servants' hall!" he murmured half under his breath.

The king neither rebuked his lively nor ignored the insinuated satire. He took no notice at all. His eyes were fixed on his still trembling hands.

Stenoves spoke in a calm, smooth voice. "Absolutely, sir, I believe the man's honest," he said, with an inference of good humored surprise. "One sees how he got the idea! I'm sure he's actually devoted to your majesty and to the prince, as we all are. He sees something going on which he doesn't understand. He knows something is going on that he's ignorant of.
He knows the unfortunate condition of your majesty's health. He's like a nurse—forgive me—in charge of a sick child. He thinks everybody but himself has designs on his charge. It's really natural, however absurd, but it surely makes the precaution I suggested even more necessary! If he went about spreading a tale like this!"

The line was clever—cleverer far than the countess' rage, cleverer than Stenoves' stately bitter sneer. But of it, too, the king took no notice. Lepage took no more than lay in a very scornful smile. He leaned down toward the motionless, dull faced king and said in his ear:

"They wanted him to go, yes! Did they want him to come back again?
No!" He bent a little lower and almost whispered: "How long would his journey have taken, sir? How long would it have taken him to get back if —in case of need?" One more question he did not ask in words, but it was plain enough without them. "How long can your majesty count on living?"

At last the king raised his head and looked round on them. His eyes were heavy and glassy.

"This man has been my trusted servant for many, many years. You, General Stenoves, have been my right hand, my other self. Colonel Stenoves is high in my confidence, and Lepage is only my servant."

"I seek to stand no higher than any other of your majesty's servants except in so far as the nature of my services gives me a claim," said Stenoves.

"But there's one here who stands far nearer to me than any one, who stands nearer to me than any living being.
She must know of this thing if it's true. If it's being done her hand must be foremost among the hands that are doing it." His eyes fixed themselves on the countess' face. "Is it true?" he asked.

"Sir, how can you ask? How can you listen? True! It's a malignant invention! He's angry because I re-proved him."

"Yes, I'm angry. I said so. But it's true for all that."

"Silence, Lepage! Am I to take your word against the countess?"

Marble, a silent listener to all this scene, thought that Lepage's game was up. Who could doubt what the countess would do? Probably Lepage, too, thought that he was beaten, that he was a ruined man, for he played a desperate card—the last card of a bankrupt player. Yet it was guided by shrewdness and by the intimate knowledge which his years of residence in the palace had given him. He knew the king well, and he knew the Comtesse Ellenberg hardly less thoroughly.

"I speak truth, sir, as I believe it, but I can't expect you to take my word against the countess. I have too much respect for Mme. la Comtesse to ask that."

Again he bent down toward the king.
The king looked up at him. Stenoves shook his head back into the mind. In a low, soothing tone Lepage made his throw—his last suggestion. "Mme. la Comtesse is of great piety. If Mme. la Comtesse will take a solemn oath—well, then, I'm content! I'll say I was mistaken—honest, I declare, sir, but mistaken."

Stenoves raised his head, with a jerk. Stenoves smiled scornfully. He was thinking that Lepage was not after all, a very resourceful fellow. An oult! Great heavens! Oaths were in the day's work when you put your hand to affairs like this. But here Stenoves was wiser, and Lepage was shrewder. Stenoves generalized from an experience rather on a side. The other two knew the special case. When oaths were mentioned—solemn oaths—Stenoves scented danger.

The king knew his wife, too, and he was profoundly affected—convulsed to the depths of his mind. The thing sounded true. It had a horrible sound of truth. He craved the countess' do-nal, solemn as it could be framed.
That would restore the confidence which was crumbling from beneath his tormented, bewildered mind.

"Can anybody object to that," he asked slowly. "If I say it will relieve my mind?" He smiled apologetically.
"I'm a sick man, you know. If it will relieve a sick man's mind, banish a sick man's fancies? If I shall sleep a little better and old Lepage here be astounded of himself?"

None of them dared to object. None could plausibly unless the countess herself, and she dared not. In his present moon "the king" would not accept the plan of her dignity. Against it he would set the indignance due to a sick man's rebellious fancies. Could she for her dignity's sake deny him what would make him sleep?

He looked at her. Something in her face appeared to strike him as strange.
A sort of quiver ran through his body.
He seemed to pull himself together with an effort. As he spoke to her his voice sounded faint and over so slightly blurred.

"You've heard Lepage, and I know that you'll speak the truth to me on your oath—the truth about the thing nearest to the heart of a dying man—
nearest to the heart of your dying husband. You won't lie on oath to a dying man, your husband and your king, for I am dying. You have years still, but they'll end. You believe that some day you and I will stand together before the throne. As you shall answer to heaven in that day, is this true? Was it in your heart and in the heart of these men to keep my son, the heir of my house, from his throne? Is it true? As you shall answer to God for your soul, is there any truth in it?"

The woman went gray in the face—
a sheet of gray paper seemed drawn over her cheeks. Her narrow lips showed a pale red streak across it.
Her prayers—those laborious, ingenuous, plausible prayers—helped her nothing here.

"I protest! At this time, sir! The countess will be upset!"

Stenoves had been driven to this he feared greatly. Not a soul heeded him. Every eye now was on the woman. She struggled—she struggled to lie. She struggled to do what she believed would bring pardon to her soul. Her voice was forced and harsh when at last she broke silence.

"As I shall answer to that day—"
"As you shall answer to God for your soul in that day"—the king repeated.
She gave a wild glance at Stenoves, seeking succor, finding no refuge. Her eyes came back to the king's face. "As I shall answer"—every word came forth by its own self, with its separate birth pang—"As I shall answer to God for my soul!"

She stopped. There was silence while a man might count ten. She threw her hands above her head and broke into a violent torrent of sob.
"I can't! I can't!" they heard her say through her tumultuous weeping.

The king suddenly
started back in his chair
as though somebody had offered to strike him. "You—you—my wife! You, Stenoves! You, whom I trusted—trusted—trusted like—Ah, is that you, Lepage? Did I hear rightly—wouldn't she swear?"

"With the utmost respect to Mme. la Comtesse, she could not swear, sir."

The king sprang to his feet. "Go!"
he cried.

They all rose—the countess shaken with unconquerable sobs. But the next moment the king made a quick indraw-ing of the breath, like a man suddenly pricked by some sharp thing. He dropped back in his chair. His head fell to meet his hands on the table in front.
The hands were palms downward, and his forehead rested on his knuckles.

There was a moment's pause. Then Lepage darted from the room, crying:
"Dr. Natcheff! Dr. Natcheff!"

Stenoves wiped his brow. Stenoves raised his head, with a queer look at the king,
and his mouth shaped for a whistle.
The countess' sobs seemed as though frozen; her whole frame was rigid.
The king did not move.

Natcheff came rushing in. Lepage,
who followed closely, shut the door
after him. They both went to the king.
There was silence while Natcheff made his examination. In a couple of minutes he turned round to them.

"Something has caused his majesty strong agitation?"

"Yes," answered Stenoves.

"Yes," said Natcheff. He cleared his throat and glanced doubtfully at the countess.

"Well!" asked Stenoves.

Natcheff threw out his hands, shrugging his shoulders ever so slightly.

"I regret to say that the effect is the worst possible. His majesty is dead."
Silence again—a silence strangely broken. Stenoves sprang across the room with a bound like a cat's and caught the physician by the shoulder.

"No!" he said. "Not for twenty-four hours yet! His majesty dies tomorrow!"

Handling the Flour Question Right

You do not want common flour.
You do want

GOLD MEDAL FLOUR

Well—Order it—that's all.

WASHBURN CROSBY CO.

The new method of handling by distances requires a change in the method of starting. It would be absolutely impossible for one starter to judge satisfactorily and accurately the position of the various starters along the track. For this reason a method has been adopted which is so mechi-

cal and automatic that no mistake is likely to be charged up against the starters. The method is simple and is illustrated in the above diagram. Men are stationed along the track at the various intervals from which the horses are to start. In front of each man is a push button connected with the master bell. The master bell is located conveniently near the starters
so that when it rings all can hear.
When a horse is in his correct position in front of the man who manipulates the push-button, the man pushes the button, but the bell will not ring until each of the various men push the button is released and it is impossible for the others to ring the bell until he is again in position and button is pushed. When all horses are in the correct position and the minute the men at their various posts have pushed the buttons down, and not until then, does the master bell ring, and all horses make the start.

Compare These Methods of Washing.

The method on the right is the right one.
The other is not.

- If you use ordinary laundry soap:
- 1st. You soak the clothes over night, or for a couple of hours.
 - 2nd. You rub soap on the soiled parts.
 - 3rd. You rub the clothes up and down the washboard—to get rid of the dirt. Hard work! And it takes time.
 - 4th. Rinse in one, two or three waters.
 - 5th. Roll and hang out to dry.
- The worst thing about this way of washing clothes is that you have to do the work in a hot room, filled with steam. Furthermore, it is expensive because you must keep a fire going for the greater part of the day.
- If you use P. & G. Naphtha Soap:
- 1st. You soak the clothes in cold or lukewarm water, in which shavings of P. & G. Naphtha Soap have been dissolved. Half an hour is long enough, as a rule; but an hour is better if the clothes are very dirty.
 - 2nd. You rub soap, very lightly, on the soiled parts.
 - 3rd. If any dirt remains, rub clothes lightly on the washboard. It is easy—done in a minute.
 - 4th. Rinse, blue and hang out to dry.
- The best thing about this way of washing clothes is that you work in a cool room. It is not necessary to boil the clothes; and, for that reason, you save time, money and fuel. Furthermore, on account of the naphtha in the soap, you get rid of three-fourths of the hard work over the washboard.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, June 21, 1868.—A Savage Blow.—Two gentlemen of the shovel and pickaxe—one a Teuton, and the other a Celt—employed on railroad work at Shoppers, got into a difficulty yesterday afternoon, the latter claiming that the German should surrender to him the pick which he had used during the forenoon. This he refused to do and in the course of the altercation struck the Irishman a heavy blow with the pick, the point of which entered the neck just back of the ear and passing around the artery, came out under the chin. It may well be imagined that the wound was a decidedly ugly one.

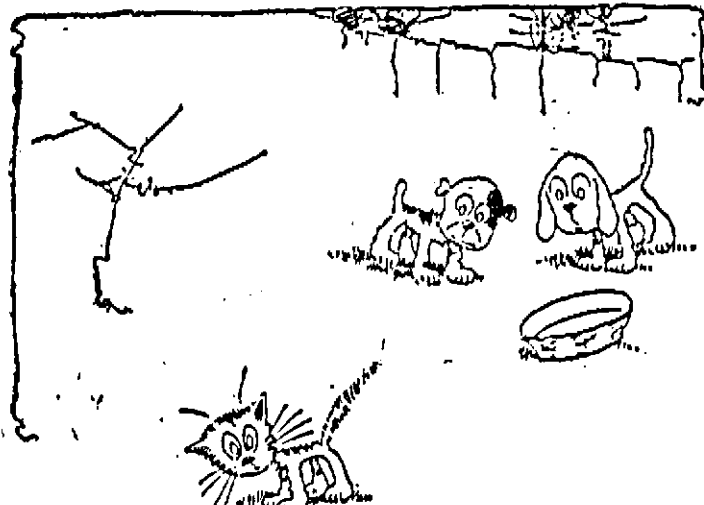

Demand for Labor.—The laborers of the west are having a good time this present season. In almost every branch the demand is greater than the supply. Wages have advanced and are as high as during the war. We hear contractors haggling for help nearly every day; and it is but a few days before the harvest will be upon us, and then the farmers will require a large force to aid them in securing the bountiful crops. If the surplus laborers of the over-crowded cities of the east, would come west and go to work, their condition would in nearly every instance be improved. There is no excuse for any man to idle away his time, for the price of labor is high enough for the most grasping. To the east we say then, send us your surplus muscle; we will find work for it to do.

Third Stevens will not present his new articles of impeachment against the President until after the tax bill has been passed in the house, when he expects to agitate the whole question again, and if the House expresses any opposition to passing the articles, his plan is to let them go onto the second against Mr. Johnson, to be used in the coming presidential campaign.

Cool, Refreshing Breezes at Home.

A very comfortable summer may be spent at home—right here in Janesville—if you have an electric fan in the house. It affords instant relief in the sultriest weather by stirring the air into healthful motion, creating currents without direct draft. The new models are furnished with blades which revolve noiselessly and may be used in the bed-room at night without disturbing the sleepers.

FOR ONE CENT AN HOUR a house fan can be kept going, making small aggregate cost for the summer, the electricity being turned on and off as needed. Don't deprive yourself of this simple, effective means of keeping cool in hot weather. For particulars write, phone or call
